Sir:

I am making a collection of the Golden Rule saying from countries all around the world. The Golden Rule is "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." These are to be incorporated into a display to be shown in about eighty-five schools.

Will you please write me the literal translation of the Golden Rule as it is known in your country; that is, as you would say it in English. It would be appreciated if you would also write me your Golden Rule in your native language.

Thank you and may God bless you and your country.

Very sincerely yours,
